A Report to The Globe and Mail and CTV

Perceptions Toward
Governor General

September 26, 2005

Introduction and Methodology

- ◆ Gregg, Kelly, Sullivan & Woolstencroft: The Strategic Counsel is pleased to present findings of The Globe and Mail/CTV Polling Program.
- ◆ The findings are based on interviews conducted by telephone among a national sample of 1,000 adult Canadians 18 years of age or older.
- ◆ The interviews were conducted between September 21st and 25th, 2005.
- ◆ A sample of 1,000 yields a margin of error of +/- 3.1 percentage points, 19 times out of 20.
- ◆ Note: Due to rounding, proportions may not total exactly 100%.

Key Conclusions – Canadians' Perceptions of Role of the Governor General and the Monarchy in Canada

- ◆ On the eve of the swearing-in of the new Governor General, Canadians hold intriguing views about the Governor General's role and whether the British monarchy should remain the head of state in Canada.
- ◆ Overall, Canadians see the Governor General as a relevant and important part of Canada's institutions. But, this is far from a unanimous view.
- ◆ Almost 6-in-10 (57%) see the Governor General as important to Canada. Not surprisingly, there are significant differences between ROC and Quebec on this question: While just over one-third (37%) of Quebecers think that Governor General plays an important role, almost two-thirds (64%) of English Canadians see the Governor General's role as important.
- ◆ Interestingly, women (64%) are more likely than men (51%) to think that the Governor General plays an important role in Canada. Moreover, younger adults (60%) are more inclined to think that the Governor General has this role in Canada, while those over 60 are less inclined to share this view.

Key Conclusions – Canadians' Perceptions of Role of the Governor General and the Monarchy in Canada

- ◆ Canadians are much less certain about the legitimacy and role of the British monarchy remaining Canada's Head of State. Canadians are virtually equally divided over whether they support or oppose the monarchy, suggesting that Canadians are increasingly ready to talk about the future of the British monarchy in Canada.
- ◆ Overall, 47% support the retention of the British monarchy, while 47% are opposed.
- ◆ It is not surprising that Quebecers (23%) are much less supportive than Canadians living outside Quebec (55%) about retaining the British monarchy.
- ◆ Once again, (perhaps surprisingly) there is evidence that those under the age of 30 (51%) are a bit more supportive of retaining the British monarchy as the head of state.

Key Conclusions – Michaëlle Jean Is a Popular Choice for Governor General

- ◆ Against this background of attitudes toward the role of the Governor General and the British monarchy, the selection of Michaëlle Jean as the next Governor General is a popular one.
- ◆ Overall, some 46% think that Jean's selection is a good appointment, while only 23% think she is a bad choice. It is worth noting that some 30% just do not know her well enough to offer an opinion. Lack of awareness of her is particularly higher among Canadians living outside Quebec (35%).
- ◆ Perhaps the most striking number (albeit anticipated) is Jean's popularity in Quebec where 71% think she is good choice and only 13% feel she is a bad choice. Her strong popularity in Quebec is particularly significant given that impressions toward both the Governor General and the British monarchy are the least positive in this part of Canada. This suggests that she has a great opportunity to strengthen the role of the Governor General in Quebec.
- ◆ There are some sub-groups that appear to be less keen on her selection: Western Canadians, men, and people over the age of 45 are the most inclined to think that Jean might not be the right choice for Governor General – this likely reflects that Jean is a non-traditional appointment. Again, Michaëlle Jean enjoys stronger appeal among those under the age of 30.

- ◆ Canadians are also inspired by the Michaëlle Jean story.
- ◆ When Canadians hear that Michaëlle Jean came to Canada from Haiti as a young child and then became a successful and prominent journalist, the popularity of her selection increases from 46% to 63%.
- ◆ Significant increases in her popularity are evident across in all regions and demographic sub-groups. The biggest increase occurs among those under the age of 30: from 49% to 71%, a rise of 22 percentage points.
- ◆ Moreover, as people learned more about Jean, views regarding her selection strengthened.

Key Conclusions – Michaëlle Jean is Viewed To Be Strongly Committed To Canada

- ◆ There are very strong views that Michaëlle Jean is committed to Canada (70%). Indeed, this view is strongest in Quebec (76%).
- ◆ In Alberta and BC there is some evidence of scepticism as about 65% share this view, but even in these provinces there is still a strong view that Jean is committed to Canada.
- ◆ Having said this, it is apparent that controversy over the views and beliefs of her spouse and herself has only marginal negative impact – 21% say that their impressions of Jean have worsened. Still, impressions toward Jean of some 63% remain the same and were unaffected by the controversy.

Key Conclusions – Governor General’s Budget is Viewed as “Poor” Use of Taxpayers’ Dollars

- ◆ Strong views exist that the Governor General’s budget of $19 million is a “poor” use of taxpayers’ dollars and are questioning the dollar value of this institution.
- ◆ About two-thirds (67%) of Canadians believe that this budget is a “poor” use of taxpayer dollars, while only 28% think it is “good” use of taxpayer money.
- ◆ Young adults under the age of 30 (35%) are more inclined than other Canadians to believe that this budget is a “good” use of taxpayers’ money. In contrast, those with high school or less education (24%) are much less inclined to see these expenditures as a “good” use of taxpayers’ dollars.
